

Working together to make social media safer

	Social media sites like Facebook can be great places for people to connect with each other.
	They are also good places for people to connect with charities.
	But sometimes people use them to share hate speech. This is when people say horrible things about others because of who they are.
	People should not have to worry about seeing posts that encourage hate or violence towards them or others.

	Lots of organisations think social media sites should do more to stop this happening.
	Some charities are going to work together to come up with ideas for how social media sites could get better at stopping hate speech.
	Some organisations have said they will not spend any money on Facebook adverts this month, or they will spend less money.